DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The amendment filed on September 25, 2003 has been entered and considered by examiner.

Priority

2. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

4. Claims 19, 21-24 and 26-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Tanaka (U.S. Patent No. 6,329,964 B1).

Art Unit: 2675

As to claim 1, Tanaka discloses an apparatus including a display unit (14) adapted to display a first image for a left eye (i.e. image is displayed on the left LCD 14) and a second image for a right eye (i.e. image is displayed on the right LCD 14). Tanaka teaches a first detecting element (left element 16 or left element 81 in Figure 8) adapted to detect a brightness around the left eye and a second detecting element (right element 16 or right element 81 in Figure 8) adapted to detect a brightness around the right eye (see column 5, lines 19-39 and column 6, lines 31-40). Tanaka teaches a first brightness adjusting unit (left unit 17) adapted to adjust a brightness of the first image according the brightness detected by the first detecting element (left element 16 or left element 81 in Figure 8) and a second brightness adjusting unit (right unit 17) adapted to adjust a brightness of the first image according the brightness detected by the second detecting element (right element 16 or right element 81 in Figure 8) (see column 5, line 46 through column 6, line 30).

As to claim 22, Tanaka clearly teaches the display apparatus being mountable on a user's head (HMD); see column 5, lines 18-21.

and the display unit (14) and a second detecting element (right element 16 or right element 81 in Figure 8) adapted to detect a brightness between the right eye and the display unit (14) (see column 5, lines 19-39 and column 6, lines 31-40). Tanaka also teaches the display apparatus being mountable on a user's head (HMD); see column 5, lines 18-21.

As to claims 24 and 26-28, these claims differ from claims 19 and 21-23 only in that claims 19 and 21-23 are apparatus whereas claims 24 and 26-28 are method. Thus, method claims 24 and 26-28 are analyzed as previously discussed with respect to apparatus claims 19 and 21-23.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 20 and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tanaka in view of Shimada (U.S. Patent No. 5,640,171).

As to claims 20, note the discussion of Tanaka above, Tanaka does not mention a contrast adjusting unit. Shimada teaches using an adjusting value switching circuit (3) for adjusting contrast, brightness; see column 4, lines 29-44. Thus, combining contrast adjusting unit (3) Shimada to the light quantity changing device of Tanaka would meet the claimed limitation "a first contrast" and "a second contrast" as recited in claim since Tanaka teaches two detecting elements. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the invention was made to have used the contrast adjusting unit (3) of Shimada to the light quantity changing device of Tanaka so as to avoided flicker being caused in the right and left LCDs (see column 1, lines 34-40 of Shimada).

As to claim 25, this claims differs from claim 20 only in that claim 20 is apparatus whereas claim 25 is method. Thus, method claim 25 is analyzed as previously discussed with respect to apparatus claim 20.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 19-28 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

In view of amendment, the references of Tanaka and Shimada have been added for new ground of rejection.
